

This Tournament Goes To Eleven III: Smell The Glove

Hosted by the University of Iowa, October 12-13, 2001

Match Game '01 (by Matt Larson [Iowa])

Rules: Each team will play 6 rounds, 1 match the audience round, and 1 bonus round. For the regular rounds: each round, the team must select one person to be the contestant, leaving the rest of the team as the panel. The moderator will read the statement. Your job is to fill in the blank with the most appropriate word. The "panelists" will write their answers on a piece of paper. When the panel is finished writing, the "contestant" says out loud what their answer would be. The panelists then, one-by-one, reveal their answers, earning a team point for each successful match.

- For the Match-the-Audience Round, each team again selects a "contestant." The moderator reads the statement. The contestant may then solicit one suggestion from each of his or her teammates. After hearing the suggestions, they may either try one of the suggestions or try a match of their own. Points are given for the top 5 matches.

- For the bonus round, the team must select a "contestant." The contestant then picks one other teammate to be the "panelist." The statement is read. The panelist writes down their answer. The contestant then says their answer aloud. If the two match, the team doubles the points they earned in the Match The Audience round. If there was no match during that round, they earn one point.

- The team which scores the most points wins, and earns as many standings points (up to 11) as is their margin of victory in the game. Good luck!

Moderator: Simply write the letters on the board. Allow the teams to go back and forth, choosing letters. After you've played all twelve, whichever team is ahead gets the first Match The Audience and second Bonus Round option, while the trailing team get the others.

A Judy said, "I'll never go out with Pinocchio again. Now I have sawdust in my BLANK."

B Ugly Mrs. Fenn's complexion was so terrible that it improved after she caught a case of BLANK.

C "Bah!" said good ol' Senile Senator Strom. "Them kids that fought World War II think they was the greatest generation? Feh! The greatest generation be the generation that fought the BLANK!"

D Little Harvey, the three-year old genius, was at pre-school. His teacher said, "Harvey, why don't you read Hansel & Gretel?" Harvey replied, "If I wanted to read German, I'd go with the works of Nobel laureate BLANK."

E Roy Rogers said, "Tell ya how I learned to yodel. Came to me very quickly after I sat down on a BLANK."

F Sad Sam said to his roommate, "Gee, I'm sad. I've been listening to Mahler." "But, Sam," replied his roommate, "you like Mahler?" "Yeah," replied Sam, "but I was listening to BLANK."

G President Clinton said to his cellmate, "Gee, Fred...I don't see why those honest types hated me so much. I mean, whose administration had more scandals...BLANK or mine?"

H Wilford Brimley, noted corporate shill, will sell anything, anywhere - in fact, in Syria, he's the spokesman for BLANK Oats!

I Dumb Dora said, "I'll never pass chemistry. I made a copy of the periodic table, but the copier cut off the right edge, and now I don't know anything about the BLANK."

J "I think my Southern Lit professor's gone a little goofy," said Smart Sally. "He's vacationing in Mississippi next month, and when we asked where, he said BLANK."

K Crazy Carl, the mad scientist, is teaching this semester - and while he doesn't like to brag, he made sure to set the record straight. The first day, he told them that he was the one that discovered the electron, not BLANK.

L George said, "I think that karate instructor is a sissy. Instead of wearing a black belt, he's wearing a BLANK belt."
