In The Sword Interval, the British Empire used the Head of Zaragon to create the “hungering” variety of these things to fight in the First World War. A piece of paper with a “shem” on it is necessary for the creation of these things, which also name a Pokémon with the hidden ability “Sand Veil” that can be evolved with a Linking Cord. In D&D 5e, a type of these things can single handedly defeat a Tarrasque due to accidentally being made immune to all damage types a Tarrasque can deal. Gossiping and panicking behaviors can spawn these creatures if a villager has not seen one in the last ten minutes, which allows for farming their iron drops. For ten points, name these constructs usually made of metal, stone, or clay.

In Undeaded, Ed and Gus teach the rest of Project Shelley how to escape from Chuck by doing this action, though Ed later has to get Mort to reverse it. The species E. atroviridis of sea slugs performs this action to rid themselves of parasites, and the flavor text of the Magic card Heroes’ Bane says that the hydra does this action to make itself deadlier. In the opening number of A Nightmare Before Christmas, Jack Skellington does this to “recite Shakespeare.” The Thing does this in the Thing to escape being burned alive after the couch scene, and one of Genie’s first acts after escaping the lamp is to do this action to fix a “crick in the neck”. Ichabod Crane is terrified when the Headless Horseman demonstrates, for ten points, what typically-fatal action?

In Ophiuchus, one of these creatures speaks her first sentence when Sagitta and Pyx come to take her away from guarding a Gate. The Phenice method is used to classify these things, and Diego Rivera’s Dream of a Sunday Afternoon in Alameda Park centrally features one in a fancy hat. John Linnell sings that “the mirror reflects a tiny dancing” one of these creatures that is “surrounded by a fleshy overcoat” in Nothing’s Gonna Change My Clothes, and the band mascots Eddie and Vic Rattlehead are both these creatures. Jason and the Argonauts fight these creatures that sprout from dragon teeth and were stop-motion animated by Ray Harryhausen. Manny Calavera works as both a lawyer and hostel owner for these creatures, in addition to being one himself, in Grim Fandango. Sans Undertale. For ten points, name these monsters that are inside of you right now, made of bones.

In Kill Six Billion Demons, this character is the leader of the Thorn Knights, and 82 White Chain Born in Emptiness Returns to Subdue Evil is overwhelmed by the revelation that “[this character] LIVES!” According to insane people on the internet, strong smells of peppercorns and chiles is a sign of this character’s presence. This character is sometimes identified as the tenth emanation of the “Cause of Causes” and other times as an ascended version of Enoch. This character appears in a bookshop to tell Aziraphale that Armeggedon is coming in Good Omens, and he uses Castiel to write an Angel Tablet to take god-like power and kills Dean Winchester right before he is locked in Heaven’s dungeon in Supernatural. For ten points, name this archangel from Jewish apocrypha that acts as God’s scribe.

The artist of Apocalypse Horseplay clarified that this conclusion was intended when Von Bellsing and Babylon return to Betty's house to retrieve Pestilence's eyes, but that it had surprised even him and so left it ambiguous. This conclusion is hinted at with the line "What is going on between you two?" when a male character finds out he didn't get any letters. In another work, this conclusion is heavily foreshadowed at the Princess Prom, and its fulfillment saves one character from Horde Prime's virus by reawakening her powers. Pictures in Mister's room lead to the beginning of this conclusion in The Color Purple, though it is averted when Shug leaves with Germaine. Princess Bubblegum wearing band T-shirts got fans asking about this conclusion, which made it to air when Marceline rescues her in the finale. Two characters walk hand in hand into a Spirit Realm portal in another work where this conclusion parallels Aang and Katara's kiss in the previous series. For ten points, name this conclusion that is the fulfillment of ships like Korrasami.

This shape is the limiting case of a 3D superellipsoid as all three exponents approach infinity. One of these shapes called Alamo is on display in Astor Place in New York. This shape is the subject of the Delian problem. In Revelation, the city of Jerusalem is reconstructed into this shape, which is also the shape of tefillin. When two "major Time points" "synergize" with two "minor Time points" in a single rotation of the Earth, the resulting 96 hours form a "Higher Order of Life" example of this shape. Three-kilometer examples of this shape made of tritium were estimated to function even if two-thirds were rendered inoperable and are capable of assimilating entire planets single-handedly. This shape is the dual of the octahedron. For ten points, name these regular hexahedrons that also can be used to randomize six numbers.

In Resident Evil 4, a flaming Ganado bursts out of one of these things in a stupid jumpscare attack that gets me every time, and you also find the Sniper Scope in one of these things, unless you're me who nopes out of it upon seeing a Regenerator in there. Sam & Max venture into an alternate dimension contained in one of these objects owned by the Geek after it consumes some repairmen, much like the one owned by Jon Arbuckle, which also contains sentient life. HFC-134a is still commonly used in these things, though R-600a is becoming more common despite being explosive. Green Lantern: New Dawn features one of these containers that name a trope where an often-female character gets killed solely to progress the character of the lead. For ten points, name these cool appliances that you might get asked about running in a common joke

Adding up the number of "love's" in "Love Me Do" plus the number of albums released by Fleetwood Mac before Rumours and the number of non-cutscene songs from the Bowser's Fury soundtrack that have Bowser's name in the title gives this result, as does adding the number of French words in Psycho Killer to the number of academy awards of Burt Bacharach. The total number of number 1 hits by Beyonce, Rihanna, Ariana Grande, and the Supremes equals this result, as does adding the number of White Stripes to the number of notes in the Pink Panther motif plus unique words in "Harder, Better, Faster, Stronger". If you add the number of letters in Morrissey's first name plus Madonna's last name to the opus number of Chopin's cycle of 24 piano preludes, you get this result. The number of beats per measure in "Take Me To Church" added to the total number of words in The 1975 album titles yields this result, and so does adding up the last digit of every year Taylor Swift released a studio album that isn't a rerelease to the number of unique live songs on Eat a Peach. The highest numbered Led Zeppelin by Led Zeppelin, Man on the Moon by Kid Cudi, and Civilisation by Kero Kero Bonito all added to Mitski's current age equals this result, which you also get by adding the number of Stephen Sondheim musicals to the best selling album of the 21st century and the number of swear words in the lyrics of Dammit. This is the total of the number of Grammys won by Kanye West and Kendrick Lamar, as well as the total length of all the songs on Weezer's Blue Album, and the total of all numbers in the titles of songs from The Dave Matthews Band album Crash. Introduction to Destruction mentions that "the dark armies will come" when, for ten points, what additive result to a certain prime is true that also happens to name the band behind the album All Killer, No Filler.
