Combined Bonus Packet

1) 30 point bonus

(This question should not be used FOR EITHER TEAM if EITHER of the teams consists of fewer than four players.)

(STOP CLOCK)

Pencils ready: Your team must designate one player as TIMER, one as TRANSLATOR, one as INTERPRETER, and one as official ANSWERER. You have ten seconds to decide who is what. And you may as well get out of your seats now. You will need room for this.

(once they have decided)

The TIMER should stand there (point to place clearly visible to both officials) where he will time the bonus when I say "go" by holding his breath, puffing out his cheeks, and pinching his nose with index fingers, with his elbows out to the sides. As long as he is able to keep his fingers tightly sealing his nostrils, and his cheeks puffed out, you may continue to work on the bonus. As soon as he breaks down and has to take a breath, the bonus ends.

The TRANSLATOR will come over by me, where I will show him a card as I say "go" containing three English words or phrases, one each from the categories "Zoology," "Sports" and "Anatomy." He will then have to find some way to convey those words, but without making a sound, or writing anything down. He may attempt to convey the words in any order.

The INTERPRETER may immediately begin guessing what any of those words is, in English, and he may not use any other language.

The ANSWERER speaks for the team. If at any time, I hear the answerer speak one of the words or phrases correctly in English, I will say "correct for 5" and no more points may be scored on that word. If I hear him speak one of them correctly in German, Spanish, or French, I will say "correct for 10."

The bonus ends when the timer runs out of breath, or correct answers are given for all three words, or there is a violation of protocol; e.g. the Interpreter uses a language other than English, or the Translator makes a sound.

Here's an example:

Suppose the word "knife" is one of the three on the card I show the translator. (point to translator) He might then mimic using a knife, and as soon as the interpreter (indicate who this is) said, "knife", the translator would non-orally indicate that this is correct. Then, the official answerer would say "messer," "cuchillo" or "couteau" for ten, or just "knife" for five.

Take your positions. Translator, come here, Timer take a breath, (show translator card) and GO!
